

Looking ahead to this year's Distribution Management Conference and Expo

The importance of networking with our target audience and showcasing our credentials at some of the globe's key pharmaceutical industry events forms a vital part of advanco's marketing schedule.

Not only do they provide an opportunity to catch up with some of our valued, current customers, they also present a golden opportunity to make new ones by introducing advanco and ARC to a whole new influential audience. We are therefore committed to playing a part in some of the biggest events across the pharmaceutical sector, either as speakers, sponsors, or simply as attendees.

This year, we are attending some of the leading events across the globe, covering America, EMEA, MENA and APAC. The first one in the diary this year is the 2024 Distribution Management Conference and Expo, taking place from March 10th to 13th at Palm Desert, California. We will be exhibiting at the event and joining over 500 over leading companies working within pharmaceutical distribution management and the pharmaceutical supply chain.

The event is HDA's largest supply chain education event and provides the perfect opportunity to discuss topics related to the healthcare supply chain and provides a forum to engage in operational and strategic discussions. As an exhibitor, we will be able to share our latest developments with attendees and provide an in-depth overview of ARC to key industry decision makers.

Topics that are of vital importance for us will also feature high on the agenda, including an update on the latest DSCSA regulations, the latest on cold chain distribution trends and how to mitigate data errors to keep a product moving through production.

Seize the opportunity to gain a comprehensive understanding of our ARC Platform and discuss how advanco's solutions can make a significant impact on your operations.
